

SEPE is a holding company of Shanghai Electric Power Transmission and Distribution Group. It was established in April 2007 with a registered capital of 75.0968 million yuan. SEPE is committed to the wind power, energy storage and new energy-related electrical control equipment, high and low voltage power electronics, automatic control, distribution equipment and related products design, production, sales, to provide relevant technical consultation, technical services. SEPE has strong research and development capabilities, fully meet the requirements of the national science and technology development support plan in the fields of new energy, wind power and electric power.